ABSTRACT

This directory is intended to provide a comprehensive listing of organizational and informational resources related to the rehabilitation needs of American Indians with disabilities. The guide is divided into two sections. The first section contains lists of American Indian organizations, American Indian centers, Bureau of Indian Affairs offices, Indian Health Service facilities, American Indian Commissions and contacts on Indian affairs, American Indian Substance Abuse Treatment Centers, and educational organizations and programs including American Indian colleges. Also included are lists of recommended books, periodicals, and audiovisual materials. The second section includes an extensive listing of rehabilitation programs and services for people with disabilities. These include: Research and Training Centers focusing on American Indians, Rehabilitation Services Administration offices, federal agencies, state Vocational Rehabilitation Agencies, national and regional organizations for people with disabilities, regional rehabilitation continuing education programs, Federal Health Information Centers, and information sources on substance abuse. Also included are lists of resources for travelers with disabilities; books on rehabilitation and disability, career development, assessment, rehabilitation and social services, multicultural counseling, and grant writing; research reports; periodicals; catalogs; computer resources; and Internet disability-related mailing lists. PREFACE

The purpose of this book is to make a wide variety of information related to American Indian rehabilitation readily available. Previously, no one book has collected so many valuable resources on this topic. The information provided includes many of the items requested frequently by Indian consumers, service providers, and other people interested in promoting the improvement of rehabilitation services for American Indians. The information will also be useful to program administrators, educators, researchers, and grant writers.

This book is divided into two parts. The section on American Indians contains up-to-date lists of urban Indian centers, tribal colleges, Indian organizations, treatment centers, etc. It also contains lists of recommended books, journals, and newsletters, as well as audiotapes, videotapes, and films.

The second part of this book includes an extensive listing of programs, support centers, and associations for people with disabilities. It also contains lists of recommended books, journals, and other media on rehabilitation, assessment, job development, assistive technology, and other important topics.

There is no way a book such as this can be complete and totally accurate. Addresses and phone numbers change over time, and even centers and organizations come and go. However, with your assistance, we intend to revise this book periodically to keep it updated and comprehensive. If you notice any information which needs to be corrected or if you want to suggest that certain information be added, please let us know. A form for this purpose can be found at the end of this book. Although we have relied on the most recent data sources available, we apologize in advance for any inaccuracies.

Several AIRRTC staff members provided information for the manual, including Priscilla Sanderson, Catherine Marshall, and Robert Schacht. Sheri Nolen coordinated the preparation of the manuscript.

In addition to the resources described in this book, the American Indian Rehabilitation Research and Training Center has a Publication List which contains 150 items, including books, articles, research reports, training manuals, and videotapes. This list and the AIRRTC brochure and newsletter are available upon request. We look forward to serving you.

BOOKS - AMERICAN INDIANS

General

Reference Encyclopedia of the American Indian, 5th Edition
Todd Publications, 1992,
18 N Greenbush Road W
Nyack, NY 10994
A 1,100 page sourcebook on Native American affairs. Contents include descriptive listings for reservations and tribal councils, organizations and associations, urban Indian centers, a bibliography of 4,500 in-print books, and about 2,000 biographical sketches of Native Americans and others active in Indian affairs in education, government, and business.
$33

Chronology of Native North American History
Gale Research Inc.
(800) 877-4253
A full chronology of the indigenous peoples of the U.S. and Canada, providing readers with difficult-to-find information on recent developments, as well as the period prior to the landing of Columbus in 1492. Unique in its depth of coverage, the Chronology opens with brief tribal chronologies and an introductory essay surveying Native cultures, history, and religions, followed by a timeline of world history with highlights of significant Native events. Short biographical sketches of Native Americans and excerpts from significant speeches, documents, and legal cases combined with over 170 maps, line drawings, and photographs are included. Among the topics covered are activism, art, education, film, literature, politics, religion, science, sports, theatre, and much more.

Mending Spirits
KNPB Channel 5
PO Box 14730
Reno, NV 89507
(702) 784-6084
This powerful documentary features several young Native people who are at various stages in their adaptation to traumatic injury or congenital disability. The tragic theme of alcoholism and drug abuse is woven into many of their stories. Mack Johnson, an accomplished Navajo artist who became paralyzed (quadriplegia) at age 23, depicts his injury and subsequent recovery from substance abuse and despair. Rhonda Williams, a member of the Shoshone-Paiute tribe who was injured at the age of 16, describes motherhood from the perspective of the wheelchair. Others tell their moving, personal accounts of pain and triumph as they confront the most critical issues of life -- such as marriage, spirituality, relationships with parents, independent living, recreation, school, and work. The program also provides information about new technology and other resources that may have been overlooked by many Native Americans who are faced with disability today.

REHABILITATION

RESEARCH AND TRAINING CENTERS FOCUSING ON AMERICAN INDIANS

American Indian Rehabilitation Research and Training Center

The AIRRTC conducts research and training projects to improve rehabilitation services for American Indians with disabilities. The Center addresses a broad range of issues, such as determining the needs of American Indians with disabilities; collecting and disseminating information on Indian people with disabilities nationally and in urban areas; developing labor market analysis models to promote the employment of American Indians with disabilities and many other issues.

The AIRRTC publishes two newsletters and a Publication List which contains 150 items, including research reports, training manuals, videotapes, directories, papers, articles, and public awareness materials. For more information or to request the current newsletter or Publication List, contact the center.

Native American Research and Training Center

The NARTC conducts research and training projects to help improve the quality of life for Native Americans with disabilities. All NARTC programs focus on health-related issues of concern to Native American populations. As a part of its research program, the NARTC investigates health and rehabilitation issues, helps determine health and rehabilitation service needs, and devises culturally-relevant interventions.

The NARTC has published 18 monographs, two special reports, and 17 videotapes. For more information or to request an order form, contact the center.

DISABILITY INTERNET MAILING LISTS

Below, in alphabetical order, are a number of disability related mailing lists that you can access through the Internet. To participate, you need to "subscribe" by sending a message to the list's distribution address on the computer. The message you send should say (without punctuation):

Subscribe LIST-NAME Your-Name

For example, to subscribe to a list for information on the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), send the message to the subscription address: "listserv@vm1.nodak.edu" that would say: Subscribe ADA-LAW John Doe.

You do not need to include your e-mail address, as it will be obvious to the receiver by looking at the "From" message that he will receive with your message.
